DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed on September 21st, 2007 under 37 CFR 1.131 has been considered but is ineffective to overcome the cited references.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1–16, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Grenchus et al. [US 7,054,824], in view of Rousseau et al. [US 2002/0001001], in view of Teveler et al. [US 2001/0034663], and further in view of Official Notice as referenced by (Frank Den Hond, Technology Analysis & Strategic Management. Abingdon: Dec 1998. Vol. 10, Iss. 4; pg. 529, 15 pgs).

As per claims 1 – 5, 8 - 12, 15 and 16, Rousseau discloses determining sale terms or lease terms based on the estimated remaining life of the commodity [see column 2, lines 19 – 26 (e.g. determined using current resale)], and via step 38]; selling or renting the commodity to a second user in accordance with the sale terms or the lease terms [see column 5, lines 19 – 28 (e.g. selling the whole product is determined)]; collecting the commodity from the second user [see column 2, lines 45 – 63 (e.g. collecting a resale price for the product)]; and dismantling the commodity into a plurality of parts after the collection of the commodity from the second user, wherein the recording section records the information indicating the usage history of the commodity in a manner in which it is substantially impossible for a user of the commodity to alter the usage history information [see column 4, lines 7 – 12 (e.g. dismantling and material separation to pursue), and lines 30 – 37 (e.g. dismantling and removal of parts from a product)].

Grenchus does not explicitly disclose estimating a remaining life of the commodity based on information indicating a usage history of the commodity recorded in a recording section provided in the commodity. However, Rousseau discloses estimating a remaining life of the commodity based on information indicating a usage history of the commodity recorded in a recording section provided in the commodity [see abstract, and claim 13].

Therefore, it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Grenchus' invention to include Rousseau's feature mentioned above. The motivation to combine would provide a method for determining estimated remaining life information for a replaceable commodity.

The combination of Grenchus and Rousseau does not explicitly disclose selling or renting a commodity to a first user and collecting the commodity from the first user. However, Teveler discloses selling or renting a commodity to a first user [see figure 3, and paragraph 0114 (e.g. commodity buyers and sellers)]; collecting the commodity from the first user [see paragraph 0014 (e.g. collect buyers' requests for certain items)].

Art Unit: 3627

Therefore, it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combination of Grenchus and Rousseau to include Teveler's method of selling or renting a commodity to a first user. The motivation to combine would provide a buyer with a discount on an original purchase of a product or service, or for the extension of credit, by tying the original transaction to a contract for the long-term purchase of one or more commodities [see paragraph 0023].

Grenchus, Rousseau, and Teveler do not explicitly disclose the recording section includes information for specifying a country, which is suitable for dismantling the commodity, said country which is suitable for dismantling the commodity being different from a country of manufacture of the commodity, so as to realize a global recycling system. However, the Examiner takes official notice that it was well known in the arts to specify a country, and said country which is suitable for dismantling the commodity being different from a country of manufacture of the commodity, for example any computer store address in the United States to dismantle a computer. Support for the Official Notice can be found in Frank Den Hond, Technology Analysis & Strategic Management (paragraph below the table 1 section of the document). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of Applicants' invention to include the aforementioned limitation within Grenchus, Rousseau, and Teveler for specifying a country, which is suitable for dismantling the commodity, and being different from a country of manufacture of the commodity.

As per claims 6, 7, 13, and 14, Grenchus discloses the commodity includes a device for sending particular information which is particular to the commodity [column 1, lines 15 – 24 (e.g. associated devices)]; the particular information includes distribution information for specifying a party involved in a distribution of the commodity [see figure 1], and when the particular information from the commodity ceases, notifies a party involved in the distribution of the commodity, which is specified by the distribution information included in the most recent piece of particular information from the commodity [via value database 26, column 4, lines 39 – 47 (e.g. source of parts values may be recent sale prices to parts brokers)], that the particular information from the commodity has ceased [see figures 2A-2B (e.g. information flow and decision making)].

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed on September 21st, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants argue that none of the cited references disclose: "information for specifying a country which is suitable for dismantling the commodity, said country which is suitable for dismantling the commodity being different from a country of manufacture of the commodity, so as to realize a global recycling system". The Examiner respectfully disagrees. Official Notice was taken to reject these limitations, and support for the Official Notice can be found in Frank Den Hond, Technology Analysis & Strategic Management, and (paragraph below the table 1 section of the document).

Art Unit: 3627

Applicants' attempt at traversing the Official Notice findings as stated in the June 26th, 2007 Office Action is inadequate. Adequate traversal is a two step process. First, Applicant must state their traversal on the record. Second, and in accordance with 37 C.F.R. § 1.111(b) which requires Applicant to specifically point out the supposed errors in the Office Action, Applicant must state why the Office Action statements are not to be considered common knowledge or well known in the art.

In this application, Applicant has clearly met step (1) as traversal of Official Notice has been taken. Second, Applicant has failed step (2) since they have failed to argue why the Official Notice statements are not to be considered common knowledge or well known in the art. Applicant did not affirmatively state why such common knowledge is not known. Because Applicant's traversal is inadequate, the Official Notice, e.g. common knowledge, statements are taken to be admitted as prior art. See, MPEP § 2144.03.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
